

"Make hay while the sun shines" is an old adage that is full of wholesome truth. But in order to have hay to cut when the sun is shining, it is best to plant something for making hay. Therefore, be sure to sow peas in abundance.

Nothing as yet has come of the suggestion that steps be taken for organizing a chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy at this place. It will not do for Winnsboro to be behind in honoring the veterans. It only remains for some one to take the initial step.

The State summer school at Clemson College promises to have an enrollment of more than 500. Applications for rooms have been coming at a very rapid rate. Those teachers who propose to take advantage of this opportunity for professional advancement should send in their application at once. Fairfield should be well represented at this State gathering of teachers. Those teachers who do not attend the State summer school should attend the Catawba district summer school to be held at Yorkville, June 15, notice of which will be found in another column.

The college commencement season is now in full blast. The large graduating classes of the present year are suggestive of the increased interest in education in this State within the past few years. With so many well equipped young men and young women entering upon the duties of life, there are better hopes for the development of the State from every standpoint. The greatly increased attendance upon the colleges also suggests the need for more and more high grade preparatory schools so as to meet this growing demand. The enlargement of Mt. Zion at this time is a step in the direction of supplying this need.

The best profits are not always direct. For instance, in addition to the direct profits, there are also the indirect profits that come from the improvement of the land. Every farmer should diligently apply himself to the problem of making his lands more productive. There is no better way for accomplishing this desired end than by the sowing of peas. With this great land restorer so cheap at this time, there is no reason why thousands of acres of land in Fairfield should not be upbuilt during the present season. Sowing peas in drills or broadcast is the kind of farming that is needed now.

The enlargement of Mt. Zion Institute by erecting a dormitory on the lot adjoining the present principal's home is now fully assured. It is rarely ever that an enterprise starts out with more reasonable assurances of success than does this. The unanimity with which the citizens responded to the appeal made to them to assist in making this enlargement possible will count no little in again winning for Mt. Zion that place of prominence among preparatory schools it so long held. So instead of looking backward always, let us face about with the determination to make the Mt. Zion of the future more glorious than the Mt. Zion of the past.

The establishing of the boarding department in connection with the Mt. Zion Institute is in no wise antagonistic to the movement of the public school trustees of the county for establishing a county industrial high school. The policy of the two schools would be so distinct as to necessitate their being kept separate. This does not mean, however, that Winnsboro will not lend its support for the establishment of the industrial school. For that she will surely do, and if the effort to establish the industrial school succeeds, she will be on hand with the necessary inducements for having it located at the county seat, where it would most properly belong.

For a Farmers' Institute.

In compliance with the notice sent out by the Clemson authorities, a petition signed by fifteen farmers has been sent to them requesting that they hold a farmers' institute at or near Winnsboro the last week in July or the first week in August.

Bollinger-Quattlebaum.

The most brilliant social event of the season was the marriage Thursday evening of Miss Bessie Mae Quattlebaum, oldest daughter of Dr. B. J. Quattlebaum, and Mr. Robert Swaffield Bollinger of Columbia. The Baptist church was most beautifully decorated in green and white. Handsome ferns and palms were banded together in a pyramid on the pulpit, while garlands of white roses and evergreens were gracefully swung from pillar to pillar. The entire church was carpeted in white, giving a most beautiful effect.

Mrs. Walter E. Wilkins of Columbia entertained the waiting friends with several choice selections on the organ. When the first notes of the Lohengrin bridal chorus, rendered by a quartette of beautiful voices, pealed forth, an expectant hush fell upon the audience as the ushers, Messrs. Will Evans, Henry Cathcart, W. C. Swaffield and Claude M. Lide, all of Columbia, entered singly, taking their positions in front of the pulpit. The bridemaids entered from the side doors of the pulpit, crossing and descending the steps. First came Miss Emmie McGee of Greenville, who appeared queenly in a handsome gown of blue chiffon over blue taffeta. She was followed by Miss Eloise Bollinger and Miss Katherine Kellam. Miss Bollinger a sister of the groom, was lovely in an elegant gown of pink chiffon over pink taffeta with point lace. Miss Kellam of Richmond, Va., was also beautifully attired in pink chiffon over pink taffeta. The bridesmaids carried bouquets of white roses. The color scheme of the costumes was the same as was used at the marriage of the bride's mother.

The little flower girls, Belle Quattlebaum of Columbia and Mary Seigler, daintily dressed in white silk and carrying white roses, preceded the maid of honor, Miss M. E. Quattlebaum, sister of the bride. Miss Quattlebaum was pretty and graceful in an elegant white accordion-plaited silk and carried an armful of pink roses. Lastly came the charming bride with her dame of honor, Mrs. Theodore Quattlebaum of Batesburg, who was handsome in white chiffon over pink taffeta. The groom attended by his best man, Mr. Charlie Bruce of Columbia, entered from the left of the pulpit, meeting the bride at the foot of the steps.

The bride's gown was an exquisite creation of white accordion-plaited net over handsome accordion-plaited taffeta. The veil was caught with a spray of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. L. Freeman, assisted by Rev. Jabez Ferris of Batesburg. Throughout the ceremony was heard the soft sweet strains of a duet rendered by Dr. Gordon Quattlebaum and Mrs. Wilkins.

To Mendelssohn's wedding march the bridal party left the church and repaired to the home of the bride, where an enjoyable reception was held. The house was beautifully decorated in green and white. An elegant course supper was served, the color scheme being carried out in the ices.

Miss Grace Bailey of Greenville presided gracefully over the frappe bowl under an arch of evergreens.

The presents were elegant and numerous, testifying to the great popularity of the young couple. The bride is well known in Columbia, having been the guest of her uncle, Dr. J. M. Quattlebaum, a number of times. She will be greatly missed from the social circles of Winnsboro and her many friends regret to lose her.

The groom is a young man of sterling character. He holds the esteem and confidence of a host of friends both in the business and social circles.

The out of town guests were: Mesdames Bollinger and Wilkins; Misses Katherine and Eloise Bollinger; Belle Quattlebaum; Messrs. Oscar Berg, William Byrd, Will Evans, Henry Cathcart, Will Swaffield, Claude Lide of Columbia; Dr. and Mrs. The Quattlebaum; Rev. Mr. Ferris; Miss Brodie of Batesburg; Mrs. Cullum; Mr. Albert Cullum of Ridge Spring; Mrs. McGee; Misses Emmie McGee and Grace Bailey of Greenville; Miss Katherine Kellam of Richmond, Va.; Col. Perry Quattlebaum of Conway.

The bride and bridegroom left on the midnight train. They have the best wishes of a host of friends.

Ridgeway Items.

This community has been greatly saddened by the death of Mrs. W. J. Johnson, wife of Senator Johnson, which occurred Wednesday. Mrs. Johnson had been an invalid for several years and for the past few months had suffered intensely all the while. Her sufferings were borne with marvelous Christian fortitude and patience. The funeral services were conducted at the Methodist church and her remains were interred in Aimwell cemetery, her pastor, Rev. A. S. Leslie, officiating, assisted by Rev. Mr. Mills.

The deceased is survived by her husband and the following children: Pearl, Ruby, Ernestine and Malcolm; a brother, Mr. E. E. Cloud, of Rock Hill, and wife were with her during her last sickness. The bereaved husband and motherless children have the sympathy of the entire community in their great affliction.

The Ridgeway High School closed on Friday night with an address to the pupils, and friends by Prof. Swearingen of Cedar Springs Institute. Prof. Swearingen made a most scholarly address and held the attention of his audience from the beginning to the end of his interesting and instructive talk on education. The address was followed by the exercises by the school children, which consisted of drills, songs and recitations. "The Rose Drill" by the larger girls and the "Rag Doll Drill" by the little boys deserve special mention, the former combining both beauty and grace and the latter causing much merriment. In every particular the children showed the most careful training and the teachers are to be congratulated on the success of the entertainment.

At the close of the evening Prof. Hogan presented to Miss Lillie Baxter a gold medal for general excellence during the school term. Those pupils receiving "honorable mention" are: D. W. Ruff, Jr., Sara Wray, Otis Wilson, Sara Ruff and Kate Hogan.

The school is fortunate in securing for next year the same efficient corps of teachers: Prof. W. S. Hogan, Miss Bozeman and Mrs. Geo. Moore.

Mrs. W. H. Ruff entertained at cards on last Thursday evening. Whist was played and Miss Roberta Williamson having received the greatest number of punches, was awarded the prize. Delicious ice cream was served at the end of the game.

Rev. R. G. McLees, synodical evangelist, with Mr. Frank Wardlaw, the singer, is conducting a series of meetings at the Presbyterian church. All the business houses are closing from 10 to 11 o'clock a. m. in order to allow the clerks to attend these services.

Death at Crosbyville.

On the morning of June 1, our friend and neighbor, Mr. Laurens Feaster, after a long and successful life as a farmer, passed peacefully from the toils of earth to join the host of friends and relatives on the other shore.

Mr. Feaster was 70 years old and was living with his second wife. He leaves a wife, four children and several grandchildren. He belonged to a family that once was large and prominent in this county. Time has thinned them out until only a very few of them are left.

Mr. Feaster was not a member of any church, but was a regular attendant of Cool Branch Baptist church and contributed liberally to its support. He was one of the first to aid and help in distress. He followed the golden rule, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

Mr. Feaster joined Co. B, 17th S. C. V., during the war and was honorably discharged on account of disability. He had never been a stout man. He was very energetic and industrious and a good manager and financier.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. E. D. Wells, pastor of Cool Branch church, after a very appropriate sermon and admonition to the unconverted of the large congregation on the importance of accepting Christ and being ready for the final end. The corpse was taken and laid away in Cool Branch cemetery.
